

GHERARDI WILL COMMAND.

THE ADMIRAL HAS RECOVERED HIS HEALTH OF SHORE.

He will take the Naval Review and is getting ready for a final social season. When the Foreigners Arrive—Soldiers Attracting Attention—The Rebuilding of the Navy and the Rebuilding of the Navy.

PORTSMOUTH, April 7.—The report that Admiral Gherardi will command the fleet at the review, has been confirmed. The admiral's health has been so good that he has been able to leave the hospital and return to his quarters. He is now in the best of health and is getting ready for the review. The admiral's health has been so good that he has been able to leave the hospital and return to his quarters. He is now in the best of health and is getting ready for the review.

When the ships got back from the fleet drill last night Admiral Gherardi signalled Rear Admiral Walker not to come on board the flagship and report on the fleet drill. The admiral's health has been so good that he has been able to leave the hospital and return to his quarters. He is now in the best of health and is getting ready for the review.

The guests who were invited to the big dinner at the hotel were the most select. The guests who were invited to the big dinner at the hotel were the most select. The guests who were invited to the big dinner at the hotel were the most select. The guests who were invited to the big dinner at the hotel were the most select.

The guests who were invited to the big dinner at the hotel were the most select. The guests who were invited to the big dinner at the hotel were the most select. The guests who were invited to the big dinner at the hotel were the most select. The guests who were invited to the big dinner at the hotel were the most select.

The guests who were invited to the big dinner at the hotel were the most select. The guests who were invited to the big dinner at the hotel were the most select. The guests who were invited to the big dinner at the hotel were the most select. The guests who were invited to the big dinner at the hotel were the most select.

The guests who were invited to the big dinner at the hotel were the most select. The guests who were invited to the big dinner at the hotel were the most select. The guests who were invited to the big dinner at the hotel were the most select. The guests who were invited to the big dinner at the hotel were the most select.

The guests who were invited to the big dinner at the hotel were the most select. The guests who were invited to the big dinner at the hotel were the most select. The guests who were invited to the big dinner at the hotel were the most select. The guests who were invited to the big dinner at the hotel were the most select.

The guests who were invited to the big dinner at the hotel were the most select. The guests who were invited to the big dinner at the hotel were the most select. The guests who were invited to the big dinner at the hotel were the most select. The guests who were invited to the big dinner at the hotel were the most select.

The guests who were invited to the big dinner at the hotel were the most select. The guests who were invited to the big dinner at the hotel were the most select. The guests who were invited to the big dinner at the hotel were the most select. The guests who were invited to the big dinner at the hotel were the most select.

JOHN SALMON, HIS MARK.

More Stories of the Deeds of the Admirable Commander of the Fleet.

When Commander John Salmon and his co-laborer, John V. Alexander, were released from their prison at the Jefferson Market Court, they were released from their prison at the Jefferson Market Court. They were released from their prison at the Jefferson Market Court. They were released from their prison at the Jefferson Market Court.

It was thought that Salmon and Alexander would make for the Aberdeen Hotel again as soon as they were released. They seized the furniture and the hotel itself on Wednesday on a judgment against a former lessee. But they did not go back.

Salmon was a marshal in the Jefferson Market Court. He was a marshal in the Jefferson Market Court. He was a marshal in the Jefferson Market Court. He was a marshal in the Jefferson Market Court.

A man who said his name was Pinckney called at the Aberdeen Hotel yesterday, according to the report. He was a man who said his name was Pinckney called at the Aberdeen Hotel yesterday, according to the report.

INSANE SOPHIE HALPERN. Suffering from Melancholia and Dread of the Future. A jury in the Supreme Court in Brooklyn yesterday decided that Sophie Halpern, the Russian woman who recently caused a sensation in this city, is insane, and Judge Bartlett will appoint a committee on her person and estate. She came to this country last summer from Paris, where she had been studying as a nurse, and went to live with Simon Halpern, her cousin. She soon left him, however, and he lost all track of her. On Feb. 27 she was found half naked in the streets and acting as if she was insane. She had nearly $2,000 with her. She was taken to Bellevue Hospital, declared insane, and sent to Blackwell's Island.

NEW YORK'S ONE HUNDRED.

Appointed to Act for the City in the World's Fair Celebrations Here. Mayor Gilroy announced yesterday afternoon the appointment of the following Committee of One Hundred to act with him in arranging for the celebration of the World's Fair in this city. The committee will consist of one hundred members, and will be organized in the city of New York.

More Nebraska Impachment Proceedings. LINCOLN, Neb., April 7.—The State Senate this morning, without a dissenting vote, adopted a resolution impeaching ex-Attorney General Leach for misdeeds in office. The resolution was adopted by a vote of 14 to 1. The resolution was adopted by a vote of 14 to 1.

MAINE INTELLIGENCE. BANGOR, Me., April 7.—The State Senate this morning, without a dissenting vote, adopted a resolution impeaching ex-Attorney General Leach for misdeeds in office. The resolution was adopted by a vote of 14 to 1.

NEW BANK IN BROOKLYN. ALBANY, April 7.—Superintendent of State Banks Preston has issued a certificate of authorization to the People's Bank of Brooklyn to do a general discount and deposit business. The capital is $100,000, and the directors are James Gascon, Henry Roth, William Andrews, Frank Hyde, George Baker, Thomas J. Smith, and others.

ALBANY, April 7.—A certificate of the increase of the capital stock of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company from $100,000 to $750,000 was filed with the Secretary of State to-day. The certificate shows that the company has increased its capital stock from $100,000 to $750,000.

ALBANY, April 7.—The Yale University met to-night and its members debated the question of the United States' policy in the Philippines. The debate was held in the Yale University.

CARTER'S ARGUMENT ENDED.

ENGLAND'S RIGHT TO INTRODUCE NEW EVIDENCE DENIED.

Mr. Carter Contends that the Question of Regulation, Not of Right, Should Be Decided First—A Secret Session on Tuesday. PARIS, April 7.—James C. Carter, counsel for the United States, continued before the Behring Sea Court of Arbitration to-day his reply to Sir Charles Russell's plea for the admission of evidence from the British side. The court is now in session to-day.

Great Britain had claimed the power under article 7 of the Arbitration Treaty, to include the supplementary report in the evidence. The court is now in session to-day. The court is now in session to-day.

Article 9 further provided that the reports shall not be made public until after being submitted to the arbitrators, or until it shall be seen that the contingency of their being used by the arbitrators cannot arise. It was thus made obvious that the court is now in session to-day.

Mr. Carter then read at length from Sir Julian Pauncefote's correspondence in 1894. He read at length from Sir Julian Pauncefote's correspondence in 1894. He read at length from Sir Julian Pauncefote's correspondence in 1894.

Mr. Carter's argument was ended. The court is now in session to-day. The court is now in session to-day. The court is now in session to-day.

Asphyxiated by Coal Gas in a Shop. FALL RIVER, April 7.—Peter Frank Davis, son of Capt. Baylies Davis of the Fall River line, and John Sheffield, formerly Captain of the schooner Hattara, were found dead this morning in the cabin of the ship Laura, moored at the wharf of the Fall River line. They were found dead this morning.

More Nebraska Impachment Proceedings. LINCOLN, Neb., April 7.—The State Senate this morning, without a dissenting vote, adopted a resolution impeaching ex-Attorney General Leach for misdeeds in office. The resolution was adopted by a vote of 14 to 1.

MAINE INTELLIGENCE. BANGOR, Me., April 7.—The State Senate this morning, without a dissenting vote, adopted a resolution impeaching ex-Attorney General Leach for misdeeds in office. The resolution was adopted by a vote of 14 to 1.

NEW BANK IN BROOKLYN. ALBANY, April 7.—Superintendent of State Banks Preston has issued a certificate of authorization to the People's Bank of Brooklyn to do a general discount and deposit business. The capital is $100,000, and the directors are James Gascon, Henry Roth, William Andrews, Frank Hyde, George Baker, Thomas J. Smith, and others.

ALBANY, April 7.—A certificate of the increase of the capital stock of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company from $100,000 to $750,000 was filed with the Secretary of State to-day. The certificate shows that the company has increased its capital stock from $100,000 to $750,000.

ALBANY, April 7.—The Yale University met to-night and its members debated the question of the United States' policy in the Philippines. The debate was held in the Yale University.

NEW PUBLICATIONS.

"Modern Marriage" is the title of a pamphlet translated from the French of Zola by Benjamin T. Tuck. It is a highly characteristic piece of work. It includes a short essay upon French marriage in general and four novels which are concerned in the naturalistic fashion with as many particular marriages in different classes of French society. In these narratives the reader may learn all about the matrimonial adventures of the Count Maxime de la Roche-Mabon and Mademoiselle Henriette de Rameau, members of the old nobility; of Monsieur Jules Beauregard and Mademoiselle Desvignes, of the wealthy bourgeoisie; of Louise Bodin and Alexandre Meunier, both in the small obscure war, and of Valentin the joiner and the poet, the florist, a very humble but exceedingly good-looking pair. If anything is omitted in these narratives we cannot imagine what it is. The naturalism does not balk, as far as anybody may discover, at any sort of detail. As none of these narratives is in French, the inference is that the translator, in France, as Zola understands it, is an unlovely thing altogether. We have seen it reported some where that Zola suffered profoundly as a consequence of the peculiarly unpleasant work which his artistic conscience called upon him to perform. That being the case, he must have been in producing the French parts of which at least are possessed of the unpleasantness of naturalism in a very high degree; and yet the manner of them is so sprightly and so playful that, judging by the manner merely, one would say he could have found only pleasure in producing them. But, despite the evidence to the contrary, the work is a masterpiece of the art of the novelist. It is a masterpiece of the art of the novelist.

"The Golden Calf" is a novel by Mr. H. H. Boyesen. It is a novel about the life of a young man in the pursuit of material riches. The hero, Oliver Tappan, is pictured in boyhood and in manhood, and is followed by the novelist down the melancholy descent which leads from honorable impetuosity and innocent optimism to disillusion and a seat in Congress. In his native New York, the young Tappan was in a good way. A learned German, a political refugee, somewhat absurd in personal appearance and in conversational habit, but of sterling character, had him in hand, and talked to him daily like a Dutch uncle, as the phrase is. "The Golden Calf" is a novel about the life of a young man in the pursuit of material riches.

"The Golden Calf" is a novel by Mr. H. H. Boyesen. It is a novel about the life of a young man in the pursuit of material riches. The hero, Oliver Tappan, is pictured in boyhood and in manhood, and is followed by the novelist down the melancholy descent which leads from honorable impetuosity and innocent optimism to disillusion and a seat in Congress. In his native New York, the young Tappan was in a good way. A learned German, a political refugee, somewhat absurd in personal appearance and in conversational habit, but of sterling character, had him in hand, and talked to him daily like a Dutch uncle, as the phrase is.

"The Golden Calf" is a novel by Mr. H. H. Boyesen. It is a novel about the life of a young man in the pursuit of material riches. The hero, Oliver Tappan, is pictured in boyhood and in manhood, and is followed by the novelist down the melancholy descent which leads from honorable impetuosity and innocent optimism to disillusion and a seat in Congress. In his native New York, the young Tappan was in a good way. A learned German, a political refugee, somewhat absurd in personal appearance and in conversational habit, but of sterling character, had him in hand, and talked to him daily like a Dutch uncle, as the phrase is.

"The Golden Calf" is a novel by Mr. H. H. Boyesen. It is a novel about the life of a young man in the pursuit of material riches. The hero, Oliver Tappan, is pictured in boyhood and in manhood, and is followed by the novelist down the melancholy descent which leads from honorable impetuosity and innocent optimism to disillusion and a seat in Congress. In his native New York, the young Tappan was in a good way. A learned German, a political refugee, somewhat absurd in personal appearance and in conversational habit, but of sterling character, had him in hand, and talked to him daily like a Dutch uncle, as the phrase is.

"The Golden Calf" is a novel by Mr. H. H. Boyesen. It is a novel about the life of a young man in the pursuit of material riches. The hero, Oliver Tappan, is pictured in boyhood and in manhood, and is followed by the novelist down the melancholy descent which leads from honorable impetuosity and innocent optimism to disillusion and a seat in Congress. In his native New York, the young Tappan was in a good way. A learned German, a political refugee, somewhat absurd in personal appearance and in conversational habit, but of sterling character, had him in hand, and talked to him daily like a Dutch uncle, as the phrase is.

"The Golden Calf" is a novel by Mr. H. H. Boyesen. It is a novel about the life of a young man in the pursuit of material riches. The hero, Oliver Tappan, is pictured in boyhood and in manhood, and is followed by the novelist down the melancholy descent which leads from honorable impetuosity and innocent optimism to disillusion and a seat in Congress. In his native New York, the young Tappan was in a good way. A learned German, a political refugee, somewhat absurd in personal appearance and in conversational habit, but of sterling character, had him in hand, and talked to him daily like a Dutch uncle, as the phrase is.

"The Golden Calf" is a novel by Mr. H. H. Boyesen. It is a novel about the life of a young man in the pursuit of material riches. The hero, Oliver Tappan, is pictured in boyhood and in manhood, and is followed by the novelist down the melancholy descent which leads from honorable impetuosity and innocent optimism to disillusion and a seat in Congress. In his native New York, the young Tappan was in a good way. A learned German, a political refugee, somewhat absurd in personal appearance and in conversational habit, but of sterling character, had him in hand, and talked to him daily like a Dutch uncle, as the phrase is.

"The Golden Calf" is a novel by Mr. H. H. Boyesen. It is a novel about the life of a young man in the pursuit of material riches. The hero, Oliver Tappan, is pictured in boyhood and in manhood, and is followed by the novelist down the melancholy descent which leads from honorable impetuosity and innocent optimism to disillusion and a seat in Congress. In his native New York, the young Tappan was in a good way. A learned German, a political refugee, somewhat absurd in personal appearance and in conversational habit, but of sterling character, had him in hand, and talked to him daily like a Dutch uncle, as the phrase is.

"The Golden Calf" is a novel by Mr. H. H. Boyesen. It is a novel about the life of a young man in the pursuit of material riches. The hero, Oliver Tappan, is pictured in boyhood and in manhood, and is followed by the novelist down the melancholy descent which leads from honorable impetuosity and innocent optimism to disillusion and a seat in Congress. In his native New York, the young Tappan was in a good way. A learned German, a political refugee, somewhat absurd in personal appearance and in conversational habit, but of sterling character, had him in hand, and talked to him daily like a Dutch uncle, as the phrase is.

"The Golden Calf" is a novel by Mr. H. H. Boyesen. It is a novel about the life of a young man in the pursuit of material riches. The hero, Oliver Tappan, is pictured in boyhood and in manhood, and is followed by the novelist down the melancholy descent which leads from honorable impetuosity and innocent optimism to disillusion and a seat in Congress. In his native New York, the young Tappan was in a good way. A learned German, a political refugee, somewhat absurd in personal appearance and in conversational habit, but of sterling character, had him in hand, and talked to him daily like a Dutch uncle, as the phrase is.

NEW PUBLICATIONS.

"The Golden Calf" is a novel by Mr. H. H. Boyesen. It is a novel about the life of a young man in the pursuit of material riches. The hero, Oliver Tappan, is pictured in boyhood and in manhood, and is followed by the novelist down the melancholy descent which leads from honorable impetuosity and innocent optimism to disillusion and a seat in Congress. In his native New York, the young Tappan was in a good way. A learned German, a political refugee, somewhat absurd in personal appearance and in conversational habit, but of sterling character, had him in hand, and talked to him daily like a Dutch uncle, as the phrase is.

"The Golden Calf" is a novel by Mr. H. H. Boyesen. It is a novel about the life of a young man in the pursuit of material riches. The hero, Oliver Tappan, is pictured in boyhood and in manhood, and is followed by the novelist down the melancholy descent which leads from honorable impetuosity and innocent optimism to disillusion and a seat in Congress. In his native New York, the young Tappan was in a good way. A learned German, a political refugee, somewhat absurd in personal appearance and in conversational habit, but of sterling character, had him in hand, and talked to him daily like a Dutch uncle, as the phrase is.

"The Golden Calf" is a novel by Mr. H. H. Boyesen. It is a novel about the life of a young man in the pursuit of material riches. The hero, Oliver Tappan, is pictured in boyhood and in manhood, and is followed by the novelist down the melancholy descent which leads from honorable impetuosity and innocent optimism to disillusion and a seat in Congress. In his native New York, the young Tappan was in a good way. A learned German, a political refugee, somewhat absurd in personal appearance and in conversational habit, but of sterling character, had him in hand, and talked to him daily like a Dutch uncle, as the phrase is.

"The Golden Calf" is a novel by Mr. H. H. Boyesen. It is a novel about the life of a young man in the pursuit of material riches. The hero, Oliver Tappan, is pictured in boyhood and in manhood, and is followed by the novelist down the melancholy descent which leads from honorable impetuosity and innocent optimism to disillusion and a seat in Congress. In his native New York, the young Tappan was in a good way. A learned German, a political refugee, somewhat absurd in personal appearance and in conversational habit, but of sterling character, had him in hand, and talked to him daily like a Dutch uncle, as the phrase is.

"The Golden Calf" is a novel by Mr. H. H. Boyesen. It is a novel about the life of a young man in the pursuit of material riches. The hero, Oliver Tappan, is pictured in boyhood and in manhood, and is followed by the novelist down the melancholy descent which leads from honorable impetuosity and innocent optimism to disillusion and a seat in Congress. In his native New York, the young Tappan was in a good way. A learned German, a political refugee, somewhat absurd in personal appearance and in conversational habit, but of sterling character, had him in hand, and talked to him daily like a Dutch uncle, as the phrase is.

"The Golden Calf" is a novel by Mr. H. H. Boyesen. It is a novel about the life of a young man in the pursuit of material riches. The hero, Oliver Tappan, is pictured in boyhood and in manhood, and is followed by the novelist down the melancholy descent which leads from honorable impetuosity and innocent optimism to disillusion and a seat in Congress. In his native New York, the young Tappan was in a good way. A learned German, a political refugee, somewhat absurd in personal appearance and in conversational habit, but of sterling character, had him in hand, and talked to him daily like a Dutch uncle, as the phrase is.

"The Golden Calf" is a novel by Mr. H. H. Boyesen. It is a novel about the life of a young man in the pursuit of material riches. The hero, Oliver Tappan, is pictured in boyhood and in manhood, and is followed by the novelist down the melancholy descent which leads from honorable impetuosity and innocent optimism to disillusion and a seat in Congress. In his native New York, the young Tappan was in a good way. A learned German, a political refugee, somewhat absurd in personal appearance and in conversational habit, but of sterling character, had him in hand, and talked to him daily like a Dutch uncle, as the phrase is.

"The Golden Calf" is a novel by Mr. H. H. Boyesen. It is a novel about the life of a young man in the pursuit of material riches. The hero, Oliver Tappan, is pictured in boyhood and in manhood, and is followed by the novelist down the melancholy descent which leads from honorable impetuosity and innocent optimism to disillusion and a seat in Congress. In his native New York, the young Tappan was in a good way. A learned German, a political refugee, somewhat absurd in personal appearance and in conversational habit, but of sterling character, had him in hand, and talked to him daily like a Dutch uncle, as the phrase is.

"The Golden Calf" is a novel by Mr. H. H. Boyesen. It is a novel about the life of a young man in the pursuit of material riches. The hero, Oliver Tappan, is pictured in boyhood and in manhood, and is followed by the novelist down the melancholy descent which leads from honorable impetuosity and innocent optimism to disillusion and a seat in Congress. In his native New York, the young Tappan was in a good way. A learned German, a political refugee, somewhat absurd in personal appearance and in conversational habit, but of sterling character, had him in hand, and talked to him daily like a Dutch uncle, as the phrase is.

"The Golden Calf" is a novel by Mr. H. H. Boyesen. It is a novel about the life of a young man in the pursuit of material riches. The hero, Oliver Tappan, is pictured in boyhood and in manhood, and is followed by the novelist down the melancholy descent which leads from honorable impetuosity and innocent optimism to disillusion and a seat in Congress. In his native New York, the young Tappan was in a good way. A learned German, a political refugee, somewhat absurd in personal appearance and in conversational habit, but of sterling character, had him in hand, and talked to him daily like a Dutch uncle, as the phrase is.

"The Golden Calf" is a novel by Mr. H. H. Boyesen. It is a novel about the life of a young man in the pursuit of material riches. The hero, Oliver Tappan, is pictured in boyhood and in manhood, and is followed by the novelist down the melancholy descent which leads from honorable impetuosity and innocent optimism to disillusion and a seat in Congress. In his native New York, the young Tappan was in a good way. A learned German, a political refugee, somewhat absurd in personal appearance and in conversational habit, but of sterling character, had him in hand, and talked to him daily like a Dutch uncle, as the phrase is.

NEW PUBLICATIONS.

"The Golden Calf" is a novel by Mr. H. H. Boyesen. It is a novel about the life of a young man in the pursuit of material riches. The hero, Oliver Tappan, is pictured in boyhood and in manhood, and is followed by the novelist down the melancholy descent which leads from honorable impetuosity and innocent optimism to disillusion and a seat in Congress. In his native New York, the young Tappan was in a good way. A learned German, a political refugee, somewhat absurd in personal appearance and in conversational habit, but of sterling character, had him in hand, and talked to him daily like a Dutch uncle, as the phrase is.

"The Golden Calf" is a novel by Mr. H. H. Boyesen. It is a novel about the life of a young man in the pursuit of material riches. The hero, Oliver Tappan, is pictured in boyhood and in manhood, and is followed by the novelist down the melancholy descent which leads from honorable impetuosity and innocent optimism to disillusion and a seat in Congress. In his native New York, the young Tappan was in a good way. A learned German, a political refugee, somewhat absurd in personal appearance and in conversational habit, but of sterling character, had him in hand, and talked to him daily like a Dutch uncle, as the phrase is.

"The Golden Calf" is a novel by Mr. H. H. Boyesen. It is a novel about the life of a young man in the pursuit of material riches. The hero, Oliver Tappan, is pictured in boyhood and in manhood, and is followed by the novelist down the melancholy descent which leads from honorable impetuosity and innocent optimism to disillusion and a seat in Congress. In his native New York, the young Tappan was in a good way. A learned German, a political refugee, somewhat absurd in personal appearance and in conversational habit, but of sterling character, had him in hand, and talked to him daily like a Dutch uncle, as the phrase is.

"The Golden Calf" is a novel by Mr. H. H. Boyesen. It is a novel about the life of a young man in the pursuit of material riches. The hero, Oliver Tappan, is pictured in boyhood and in manhood, and is followed by the novelist down the melancholy descent which leads from honorable impetuosity and innocent optimism to disillusion and a seat in Congress. In his native New York, the young Tappan was in a good way. A learned German, a political refugee, somewhat absurd in personal appearance and in conversational habit, but of sterling character, had him in hand, and talked to him daily like a Dutch uncle, as the phrase is.

"The Golden Calf" is a novel by Mr. H. H. Boyesen. It is a novel about the life of a young man in the pursuit of material riches. The hero, Oliver Tappan, is pictured in boyhood and in manhood, and is followed by the novelist down the melancholy descent which leads from honorable impetuosity and innocent optimism to disillusion and a seat in Congress. In his native New York, the young Tappan was in a good way. A learned German, a political refugee, somewhat absurd in personal appearance and in conversational habit, but of sterling character, had him in hand, and talked to him daily like a Dutch uncle, as the phrase is.

"The Golden Calf" is a novel by Mr. H. H. Boyesen. It is a novel about the life of a young man in the pursuit of material riches. The hero, Oliver Tappan, is pictured in boyhood and in manhood, and is followed by the novelist down the melancholy descent which leads from honorable impetuosity and innocent optimism to disillusion and a seat in Congress. In his native New York, the young Tappan was in a good way. A learned German, a political refugee, somewhat absurd in personal appearance and in conversational habit, but of sterling character, had him in hand, and talked to him daily like a Dutch uncle, as the phrase is.

"The Golden Calf" is a novel by Mr. H. H. Boyesen. It is a novel about the life of a young man in the pursuit of material riches. The hero, Oliver Tappan, is pictured in boyhood and in manhood, and is followed by the novelist down the melancholy descent which leads from honorable impetuosity and innocent optimism to disillusion and a seat in Congress. In his native New York, the young Tappan was in a good way. A learned German, a political refugee, somewhat absurd in personal appearance and in conversational habit, but of sterling character, had him in hand, and talked to him daily like a Dutch uncle, as the phrase is.

"The Golden Calf" is a novel by Mr. H. H. Boyesen. It is a novel about the life of a young man in the pursuit of material riches. The hero, Oliver Tappan, is pictured in boyhood and in manhood, and is followed by the novelist down the melancholy descent which leads from honorable impetuosity and innocent optimism to disillusion and a seat in Congress. In his native New York, the young Tappan was in a good way. A learned German, a political refugee, somewhat absurd in personal appearance and in conversational habit, but of sterling character, had him in hand, and talked to him daily like a Dutch uncle, as the phrase is.

"The Golden Calf" is a novel by Mr. H. H. Boyesen. It is a novel about the life of a young man in the pursuit of material riches. The hero, Oliver Tappan, is pictured in boyhood and in manhood, and is followed by the novelist down the melancholy descent which leads from honorable impetuosity and innocent optimism to disillusion and a seat in Congress. In his native New York, the young Tappan was in a good way. A learned German, a political refugee, somewhat absurd in personal appearance and in conversational habit, but of sterling character, had him in hand, and talked to him daily like a Dutch uncle, as the phrase is.

"The Golden Calf" is a novel by Mr. H. H. Boyesen. It is a novel about the life of a young man in the pursuit of material riches. The hero, Oliver Tappan, is pictured in boyhood and in manhood, and is followed by the novelist down the melancholy descent which leads from honorable impetuosity and innocent optimism to disillusion and a seat in Congress. In his native New York, the young Tappan was in a good way. A learned German, a political refugee, somewhat absurd in personal appearance and in conversational habit, but of sterling character, had him in hand, and talked to him daily like a Dutch uncle, as the phrase is.

"The Golden Calf" is a novel by Mr. H. H. Boyesen. It is a novel about the life of a young man in the pursuit of material riches. The hero, Oliver Tappan, is pictured in boyhood and in manhood, and is followed by the novelist down the melancholy descent which leads from honorable impetuosity and innocent optimism to disillusion and a seat in Congress. In his native New York, the young Tappan was in a good way. A learned German, a political refugee, somewhat absurd in personal appearance and in conversational habit, but of sterling character, had him in hand, and talked to him daily like a Dutch uncle, as the phrase is.

NEW PUBLICATIONS.

"The Golden Calf" is a novel by Mr. H. H. Boyesen. It is a novel about the life of a young man in the pursuit of material riches. The hero, Oliver Tappan, is pictured in boyhood and in manhood, and is followed by the novelist down the melancholy descent which leads from honorable impetuosity and innocent optimism to disillusion and a seat in Congress. In his native New York, the young Tappan was in a good way. A learned German, a political refugee, somewhat absurd in personal appearance and in conversational habit, but of sterling character, had him in hand, and talked to him daily like a Dutch uncle, as the phrase is.

"The Golden Calf" is a novel by Mr. H. H. Boyesen. It is a novel about the life of a young man in the pursuit of material riches. The hero, Oliver Tappan, is pictured in boyhood and in manhood, and is followed by the novelist down the melancholy descent which leads from honorable impetuosity and innocent optimism to disillusion and a seat in Congress. In his native New York, the young Tappan was in a good way. A learned German, a political refugee, somewhat absurd in personal appearance and in conversational habit, but of sterling character, had him in hand, and talked to him daily like a Dutch uncle, as the phrase is.

"The Golden Calf" is a novel by Mr. H. H. Boyesen. It is a novel about the life of a young man in the pursuit of material riches. The hero, Oliver Tappan, is pictured in boyhood and in manhood, and is followed by the novelist down the melancholy descent which leads from honorable impetuosity and innocent optimism to disillusion and a seat in Congress. In his native New York, the young Tappan was in a good way. A learned German, a political refugee, somewhat absurd in personal appearance and in conversational habit, but of sterling character, had him in hand, and talked to him daily like a Dutch uncle, as the phrase is.

"The Golden Calf" is a novel by Mr. H. H. Boyesen. It is a novel about the life of a young man in the pursuit of material riches. The hero, Oliver Tappan, is pictured in boyhood and in manhood, and is followed by the novelist down the melancholy descent which leads from honorable impetuosity and innocent optimism to disillusion and a seat in Congress. In his native New York, the young Tappan was in a good way. A learned German, a political refugee, somewhat absurd in personal appearance and in conversational habit, but of sterling character, had him in hand, and talked to him daily like a Dutch uncle, as the phrase is.

"The Golden Calf" is a novel by Mr. H. H. Boyesen. It is a novel about the life of a young man in the pursuit of material riches. The hero, Oliver Tappan, is pictured in boyhood and in manhood, and is followed by the novelist down the melancholy descent which leads from honorable impetuosity and innocent optimism to disillusion and a seat in Congress. In his native New York, the young Tappan was in a good way. A learned German, a political refugee, somewhat absurd in personal appearance and in conversational habit, but of sterling character, had him in hand, and talked to him daily like a Dutch uncle, as the phrase is.

"The Golden Calf" is a novel by Mr. H. H. Boyesen. It is a novel about the life of a young man in the pursuit of material riches. The hero, Oliver Tappan, is pictured in boyhood and in manhood, and is followed by the novelist down the melancholy descent which leads from honorable impetuosity and innocent optimism to disillusion and a seat in Congress. In his native New York, the young Tappan was in a good way. A learned German, a political refugee, somewhat absurd in personal appearance and in conversational habit, but of sterling character, had him in hand, and talked to him daily like a Dutch uncle, as the phrase is.

"The Golden Calf" is a novel by Mr. H. H. Boyesen. It is a novel about the life of a young man in the pursuit of material riches. The hero, Oliver Tappan, is pictured in boyhood and in manhood, and is followed by the novelist down the melancholy descent which leads from honorable impetuosity and innocent optimism to disillusion and a seat in Congress. In his native New York, the young Tappan was in a good way. A learned German, a political refugee, somewhat absurd in personal appearance and in conversational habit, but of sterling character, had him in hand, and talked to him daily like a Dutch uncle, as the phrase is.

"The Golden Calf" is a novel by Mr. H. H. Boyesen. It is a novel about the life of a young man in the pursuit of material riches. The hero, Oliver Tappan, is pictured in boyhood and in manhood, and is followed by the novelist down the melancholy descent which leads from honorable impetuosity and innocent optimism to disillusion and a seat in Congress. In his native New York, the young Tappan was in a good way. A learned German, a political refugee, somewhat absurd in personal appearance and in conversational habit, but of sterling character, had him in hand, and talked to him daily like a Dutch uncle, as the phrase is.

"The Golden Calf" is a novel by Mr. H. H. Boyesen. It is a novel about the life of a young man in the pursuit of material riches. The hero, Oliver Tappan, is pictured in boyhood and in manhood, and is followed by the novelist down the melancholy descent which leads from honorable impetuosity and innocent optimism to disillusion and a seat in Congress. In his native New York, the young Tappan was in a good way. A learned German, a political refugee, somewhat absurd in personal appearance and in conversational habit, but of sterling character, had him in hand, and talked to him daily like a Dutch uncle, as the phrase is.

"The Golden Calf" is a novel by Mr. H. H. Boyesen. It is a novel about the life of a young man in the pursuit of material riches. The hero, Oliver Tappan, is pictured in boyhood and in manhood, and is followed by the novelist down the melancholy descent which leads from honorable impetuosity and innocent optimism to disillusion and a seat in Congress. In his native New York, the young Tappan was in a good way. A learned German, a political refugee, somewhat absurd in personal appearance and in conversational habit, but of sterling character, had him in hand, and talked to him daily like a Dutch uncle, as the phrase is.

"The Golden Calf" is a novel by Mr. H. H. Boyesen. It is a novel about the life of a young man in the pursuit of material riches. The hero, Oliver Tappan, is pictured in boyhood and in manhood, and is followed by the novelist down the melancholy descent which leads from honorable impetuosity and innocent optimism to disillusion and a seat in Congress. In his native New York, the young Tappan was in a good way. A learned German, a political refugee, somewhat absurd in personal appearance and in conversational habit, but of sterling character, had him in hand, and talked to him daily like a Dutch uncle, as the phrase is.

William Dean Howells

Just Published:

THE WORLD OF CHANCE

A Novel. 12mo, Cloth, $1.50.

The scene of Mr. Howells' latest novel is in New York city, and the hero a young literary aspirant who comes to the metropolis with the manuscript of an unpublished story in his possession. The narrative is skilfully constructed, and the reader will be no less interested in the author's delineation of literary and journalistic life in New York than in his realistic presentation of some of the prominent social and economic problems of the day.

Other Books by William Dean Howells:

Novels.

THE QUALITY OF MERCY. 12mo, Cloth, $1.50; Paper, 75 cents.

AN IMPERATIVE DUTY. 12mo, Cloth, $1.00; Paper, 50 cents.

A HAZARD OF NEW FORTUNES. 2 Volumes, 12mo, Cloth, $2.00; Illustrated, 12mo, Paper, $1.00; Illustrated, 8vo, Paper, 75 cents.

ANNIE KILBURN. 12mo, Cloth, $1.50; Paper, 75 cents.

APRIL HOPES. 12mo, Cloth, $1.50; Paper, 75 cents.

THE SHADOW OF A DREAM. 12